CUÉLLAR, Cuéllar, settled since prehistoric times on several hills and surrounded by the largest area of resinous pines in Europe, is the largest provincial town in Segovia with a population of 9,800 inhabitants. It is essentially defined as the “Mudejar town”. When walking along its steep old streets one may be surprised by the great monumental richness which has been left in the streets and buildings of the town over the passage of time: palaces, emblazoned houses, vernacular architecture, convents, the castle, churches and walls, with their stone towers, define the skyline of Cuéllar. Repopulated from the 11th century, it was above all in the 13th century when the economy began to boom based on the wool trade. Such wealth meant that in only one century more than a dozen Mudéjar churches were built, using brick as the basic material for their façades and apses, timber for the hand-crafted ceilings and walls of limestone masonry for the rest. These all serve to make Cuéllar the richest Mudéjar centre in Castilla-León. It is also worth noting that it was here where the three Medieval cultures on the peninsula lived in harmony: Jews, Moors and Christians. Vestiges of this cohabitation remain such as the Jewish quarter; the Moorish quarter street or the Muslim necropolis of Santa Clara (St. Clare), authentic testimony to the large Medieval complex.

The inhabited castle

This is a theatrical visit in the “El Torreón de la Memoria” (the tower of memory) and in the castle cellars, where every weekend of the year, different characters give life to their small battles, stories, or the harsh jobs they carried out in the Middle Ages.

ARCHITECTURAL HERITAGE

Church of St. Stephen

Church of St. Peter

Despite the fact that the greatest period of Medieval architecture was the 13th century, already in the 11th century the Romanesque church of San Pedro had been erected, located in the lower part of the town. It is the culmination of the second walled area of the town, its apse serving as the defensive bastion of a fortified gate next to the church which was preserved until the beginning of the 20th century.

Church of St. Stephen

In the upper part of the town, it serves as a buttress which closes the walls of the citadel. The apse is the most representative of the Castillian Mudejar, as well as four alabaster tombs on the inside, although from the 16th century. It is an interesting complex with its necropolis, recovered as part of the Medieval archaeological site of San Esteban, where tanneries, ice houses, food stores and anthropomorphic tombs can be seen. —————

Church of St. Martin

Of all the Mudéjar churches, San Martín is distinguished for its state of conservation, restored by the local restoration workshop. It is the first in which Mudéjar in its pure state can be seen, free of plasterwork and moldings from other centuries. This church currently houses the Mudéjar Art Visitor Centre.

Church of St. James

Only the apse remains of this aged monument. It is interesting as one can see the rows of brick arches, the arrow slit windows or the excellent views it affords of the horizon: the sea of pine trees.

Church of St. Andrew

Outside the town walls, it has one of the most perfect Mudéjar ground plans. Three naves, one central and two lateral, are finished with a triple apse with brick arches and coffering which continue on the exterior walls of the lateral naves. It houses a wealth of sculptures, represented above all by a Romanesque Stations of the Cross, as well as the Mudejar paintings recently discovered in the apses.

Church of the Holy Saviour

This is also a Mudejar church with an apse with brick arches and coffering, where imposing flying buttresses serve as buttresses to the apse. Also noteworthy is its slender tower located at the church.

Other noteworthy churches

In terms of Mudejar architecture these are Santa María de la Cuesta, the church of la Trinidad (Holy Trinity), the church of Santo Tomé, the church of San Miguel (St. Michael) or the tower of the old church of Santa Marina, an excellent example of Castillian Mudejar architecture. In terms of remaining convents, we could mention the area known as “Paseos de San Francisco” (the footsteps of St. Francis) as a conventual area. Here, three important foundations may be found: San Francisco, the most distinguished in the town as it is the burial place of the Dukes of Alburquerque and part of Cuellar's nobility. Not in vain was it considered as a cathedral. However, its ruin, plundering and abandonment at the beginning of the 20th century, led to its definitive disappearance. In recent years it has been recovered, having restored the lateral chapels. Santa Ana largely conserves its 16th century architecture, although it was modified after the government-enforced sale of church property when it passed into private hands. La Concepción is an 18th century Baroque church, built upon an earlier structure from the 16th century. Inside, an important altarpiece by Pedro Bolduque has been preserved. Currently it is occupied by a small community of cloistered nuns. In the south of the town, next to the A-601 road, the convent of Santa Clara (St. Clare) can be found, late Gothic with a Renaissance façade and cloister. Inside the main altarpiece has been preserved, a Romanesque Christ and important pieces from the house of the Dukes of Alburquerque brought from the church of San Francisco.

The tower of the old church of Santa Marina

Fortified town

If anything defines Cuéllar, other than its Mudejar churches, is its nature as a large walled town. Therefore, at any point during one's visit, large stretches of different defensive lines can be seen. Two walled areas dominated by the castle and reinforced by inner walls make up the fortified town. Important gates such as that of San Basilio, San Martín and San Andrés have been preserved as well as arches such as that of Santiago or that of the Jewish quarter. Nowadays it is possible to walk along the walls from where one can enjoy stunning views of the Medieval town.

Most important of all in this defensive complex is the castle-palace of the Dukes of Alburquerque, the most emblematic building in the town. Set apart by its imposing towers, and its large bailey with a gallery on the southern façade; both Renaissance. Nowadays it is an educational institution and a part is used for guided theatrical tours.

PALACES, NOBLE HOUSES AND VERNACULAR ARCHITECTURE

There are still streets in Cuéllar with an olden-day atmosphere where one can get a feel for what life was like in centuries past. To walk through the town is to admire its palaces, emblazoned houses or its vernacular architecture, built with timber frames and adobe or limestone masonry. Noteworthy are the palace of Rey Don Pedro I (Peter I), one of the few examples of Romanesque civil architecture, or the palace of Santa Cruz, an example of late civil Mudejar. The Estudio de Gramática (grammar studio) must not go without mention, founded in the 15th century, or the noble houses of the Daza, Rojas or Velázquez families in San Pedro street.

ROUTES AND GREEN TOURISM

Cuéllar is the head of the Comunidad de Villa y Tierra (regional administrative district) of the same name. It encompasses 36 villages in the resinous pine region which constituted its main source of wealth until not so long ago. Today it is an extensive patch of green of great ecological and aesthetic value. The river Cega flows through a riverside forest, very characteristic of the Castilian plateau. Poplars, hazels, oaks etc. comprise the habitat of a variety of bird life. All this may be covered along a walking trail: La Senda de los Pescadores (the fishermen's trail), about 20 km long, of a duration of 5 or 6 hours, maximum altitude 840 m, minimum altitude 790 m beginning at the El Segoviano bridge on the A-601 Segovia to Valladolid, 3km from the town of Cuéllar.

teeworthy. It is a splendid Romanesque church with an excellent portico with eight hollows on the north side and a magnificent semicircular apse. What stands out the most are the capitals in the nave decorated in a variety of motifs. Ruins of the church of San Martín and the necropolis. The Medieval wall with its three entrance gates is also noteworthy, the stone bridge and the ruins of the Hospital de la Magdalena. The routes around the Vencías reservoir and the San Blas viewpoint are magnificent.

Sacramenia

Inside it houses a 13th century baptismal font, painted murals and a processional cross crafted in the 18th century. Church of San Martín in whose interior lies a triumphal semicircular arch which is supported by double columns with capitals. Ruins of the Romanesque church of San Miguel.

LET'S PARTY!

PROCESSION OF NIÑO DE LA BOLA

With a tradition of hundreds of years, this Baroque sculpture is carried in procession on the 1st and 6th of January, to the sound of dulzainas and tabors. Also, the dancers play rhythm bones.

EASTER

The eight guilds which accompany the evening processions on Easter Thursday and Good Friday attract thousands of people to see the beauty of the religious sculptures among the silence and the sound of trumpets and drums.

CRAFT FAIR

With pottery, ceramics, leather, food products and other crafts.

NATIONAL JOTA FESTIVAL

Held in the month of August in the castle bailey in which dance groups from Spanish provinces perform.

MEDIEVAL FAIR

This is held on the third weekend in August. Exhibitions of various crafts, jousts, Medieval tournaments, typical cuisine, performances of folk music.

FESTIVAL OF SAN MIGUEL

On 29th September the feast day of the patron saint of Cuéllar is celebrated with a range of activities, running of the bulls, street music and the traditional tapas competition "Villa de Cuéllar".

Running of the bulls

Declared of National Tourist Interest

Already in 1499 the town ordinances dedicated space to the topic of the running of the bulls. Since then, the festival has continued to grow becoming one of the most popular in the region. Coinciding with the popular feast days, men run before the bulls through the steep streets of the town. They have been declared of National Tourist interest, being documented as the oldest in Spain. As of the last Sunday in August five bull runnings pass through the streets of the town. _____

Procession of El Henar

This takes place on the closest Saturday to September 21st. The sanctuary, 5km from Cuéllar, was erected in the place in which, according to legend, sprang a stream by a miracle of Our Lady of El Henar, patroness of the district. On the Saturday, the torchlight procession begins, held by the pilgrims. On the Sunday, after the main mass, at 12 o'clock, the virgin is carried in procession, in a carriage, by children. After, the "andas" auction is held where participants bid for the right to carry the virgin upon their shoulders. _____

WHERE TO EAT

To sample the suckling lamb roasted in a wood-fired oven is the greatest delight for the visitor's palate. Along with it, according to season, the milk caps from the local pine forests must also be tried, as well as endives, and chicory in ice cream, cake or tea. The cured meats, sheep's cheese and baked goods have a deserved prestige for their time-honoured quality.
